I have lived in Rockland County since 1957 and think it's crazy that in the absence of the West Shore line since 1959, that it has taken this long to talk...seriously... about rail service over the Hudson/TZ connecting to the Metro North lines. In the past few decades, occasionally my heart would flutter a bit when I read that someone, somewhere was considering another "study" .A no brainer, except that maybe the wrong brains have been processing this idea since it was first floated. What's the over/under on getting this done in my lifetime? (I'm 52.West Shore folded up when I was 4)
