To whom it may concern,

I'd like to add my voice to those who have asked that you include a bike path in the plans for the redesign of the Tappan Zee bridge. I personally would love to use such a path, and I believe it's important to make available to the public alternative means of transport that reduce our dependence on cars as a sole means of transport. Once the bridge is redone, it will be too late to make a "bike upgrade"--it is now that the foresight and bravery to do something in keeping with the times is truly important, and to stick with the plan.

Thank you,

Tom Andrews
